

This is your brain on nature.

Learn about the 8 million species we share the planet with, and how hanging out with them makes you literally healthier.

BIOLOGY 29: Introduction to Biodiversity
Fall 2019

- The class for people who love being outside in nature studying animals and plants
- Non-majors course that satisfies Life Sciences requirement for transfer to CSUs, Biological Sciences for General Ed at the UCs, and Natural Sciences requirement for AA/AS degrees.
- Field trips!
- Student-centered, active-learning teaching environment—no boring lectures allowed!
- Taught by Dr. Brad Balukjian, entomologist (that means I study bugs!) and National Geographic writer. Questions? Bbalukjian@peralta.edu
